

Fronted Adverbials

A fronted adverbial is an adverbial which comes at the front of a sentence. An adverbial provides extra information about the rest of the sentence.

1. Using TRAMP to help you, can you identify which of these fronted adverbials detail time, reason, manner or place? Colour them in the correct colours.

Because he was scared,

Silently,

Anxiously,

At the stroke of midnight,

At the end of the day,

Before the sun came up,

2. Can you add detail to each of these clauses by including different fronted adverbials?

- a) _____ she scurried along the beach to the wooden hut.
- b) _____ the boy tumbled into his bed and buried himself under the covers.
- c) _____ the teacher praised the class for their good behaviour.
- d) _____ he could hear a rumbling sound.
- e) _____ the lady sat waiting for her train to London.

Don't forget to add in the commas!

1. Write three sentences of your own which include fronted adverbials.

- a) _____

- b) _____

- c) _____
